Historical Note:

The Champaign-Urbana Chapter of the National Society of Arts and Letters was chartered in December of 1981. Primarily made up of women from the Champaign-Urbana area, the chapter was initially presided over by society presidents Duane Cultra and Dorothy Herwick. This chapter is one of 18 chapters that make up the National Society of Arts and Letters which was founded in 1944. The initial goal of the society was to provide young local artists with opportunities to compete with, and display, their work on a local level and potentially on a national level. The local chapter evolved into the Central Illinois Chapter as its membership expanded in the late 1980s, and continues to pursue its goals of supporting and providing platforms for local aspiring young artists.

Scope and Content Note:

This collection provides documentation of both national and the Central Illinois Chapter of the National Society of Arts and Letters membership, meetings (invitations, minutes, and member notes), financial reports, national newsletters, newspaper clippings, local and national competitions and awards ranging from 1981-2017. The collection includes a specially designated folder for the documentation of the achievements of Ollie Watts Davis, a national award winner turned honorary member of the Central Illinois Chapter.

Arrangement:

The collections flows from the Champaign Urbana Chapter's charter to its membership, to organization, to event planning, and into documentation of competitions and awards. Each grouping of Central Illinois Chapter materials is paired with its parallel national material documentation.
