Historical Note:

The Woman's Club of Sidney, Illinois was founded in 1906. Mary Busey and Helen Packard were instrumental in the club formation. A meeting was held at Mrs. J.B. Porterfield's house, where it was decided to organize a woman's club for Sidney and a nominating committee was appointed for the election of officers. The name of the organization was listed in the original constitution as "The Woman's Club of Sidney, Illinois" but was often times and in later years referred to as "The Sidney Woman's Club." The object of the club was to create an intellectual stimulus, and to be a means of mutual improvement. Meetings were held September through June and would include a program topic from one of the following departments: arts, conservation, education, health, home life, international affairs, or public affairs. The club provided monetary or volunteer support to many community and general projects. Some of these projects included tree planting, refreshments for the USO, books for the school library, scholarships for band and art camps, gifts for children living in youth homes, plantings for the Lions Club Park, donations for the veterans' hospital, landscaping for the community center, and working with other groups to form a library in Sidney. Project funds came from membership dues, bake sales, rummage sales, plays, and other fundraisers. The membership yearbooks in this collection end with the 1986-1987 year, but the club continued to exist until approximately 2005. A decline in membership led to a vote for the club to be disbanded.

The Woman's Club of Sidney joined the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs in 1907, the District Federation in 1908, the General Federation in 1927, and the County Federation in 1927. One of the club's members, Oral Boccock Lehman, was also an officer at the district and state levels.

A motion was made and seconded at the February 7, 1928 meeting to check with the federation officers regarding a junior organization and the Sidney Junior Woman's Club was organized in 1928. The Junior Club joined the District Federation in 1928, and the State and County Federations in 1933. The Sidney Junior Woman's Club disbanded around 1948 and members merged back into the Sidney Woman's Club.
